Several plots in the public cemetery here, have by the expenditure of much time and care, been cultivated and made into a fitting tribute to the memory of loved ones departed. Some have been cultivated with clover. Among these may be mentioned Mrs. C. Richtmyer, Mr. Forshey, Mr. D. S. Richtmyer, Mr. Sanders. This week the cemetery had attained a growth of three or four inches, and being in bloom, looked very nice and attractive. Wednesday morning Mr. Forshey visited the graveyard and found that Mrs. Richtmyer's plot had been neglected of its verdure; also Mr. Forshey's and a part of another plot. This has happened several times. The supposition is that it is done during the night, and that the grass is taken for feed for some domestic animal—such as rabbits. The culprits, if discovered, will not be prosecuted and punished as severely as the law will permit. It is the hope that the Society will keep for the purpose of catching the parties engaged in this contemptible business.

New Quarters.

We have been moving the Ledger this week into new quarters in the hall building over Newman's livery stable. It has been quite a task. Two printing plants had to be moved—the Ledger and Republican plants. The Republican office in Spagnoli's building, opposite the Hall of Records, there being no room to accommodate it in the Ledger office. Our new office will accommodate the material of both plants, and still have room to spare. It will take a week or two before we get fairly settled in our new home, and our readers will notice a better and more comfortable arrangement of our many shortcomings in the interior of the building. The Ledger office will be one of the most commodious and handily arranged newspaper establishments to be found in the state, outside of the large cities. We are working for turning out work of every kind will be unexcelled by any town of equal population in the state.

A Neglected Ordinance.

Last Monday morning one of Hewitt's 10-mile teams attempted to round the corner opposite Ginochco's store with a load of logs for the Zello mine. The driver was forced to swing in too close to the corner on account of the teams that are left standing in the street, and the trailer or rear wagon struck the post at the corner. The driver was badly demoralized. Ginochco Bros. say that the supervisors, a year or so ago, passed an ordinance prohibiting people from leaving their teams standing at the intersection of Water street and Broadway, as at that corner the streets are so narrow that it is very hard for a big team to turn, but like many another ordinance it has become a dead letter.

To Be Rebuilt.

The burnt district will soon be covered by new buildings, and again Jackson will have a chinatown that will be, as it was before, a dangerous fire trap, for it is well known that the Chinese never make an effort to extinguish flames, but the moment a fire starts they scatter in every direction, and return after all excitement is over. W. S. Gilbert, the carpenter, has been engaged to put up one building, and as soon as he has finished that he will start in on a row of buildings two stories high fronting on Main street. Hank Tallon has already commenced the erection of a building on the site of the burnt district, which was occupied by Thomas Lemm as a saloon.

THAT FATAL FALL.

Obren Vasilievich's Death due to his own Act.

Coroner Gritton held an inquest on the 5th of July on the body of Obren Vasilievich, who lost his life in the Zella shaft on the 4th. The following jurors were sworn to investigate the matter: R. W. Ketcham, L. Poggi, H. L. Porter, W. H. Willis, W. E. Kent, Dr. Ferovich, P. Buffington and W. E. Kent.

James Cook, the skiptender, who was in the ship with deceased when the accident occurred, testified that it was a few minutes before the dinner hour, and we were on the way out of the shaft, I noticed something unusual in the way the skip ran, and remarked, "We must all the skip before we come down after dinner." Vasilievich made no answer. When about 80 feet from surface the skip gave a big jerk, and I saw that deceased wanted to jump out and pull the bell wire. I told him not to do so. I pulled the wire and saw him no more alive. I heard him falling down the shaft. The condition of the shaft was good. One wheel got off the track, three remaining. I did not consider that a serious matter for a wheel to get off track. It takes about six minutes to come from the bottom of shaft—1000 feet—to the surface. After I rang the bell, the skip went about four feet. Do not know what happened after that. Track may have spread at that particular point. Oil or no oil would have made no difference. Deceased was quick and excited, and tried to jump on center beam.

W. J. Harvey said it was the daily custom to look at the track going up and down. Inspected the track immediately after the occurrence. Track was all right at that point. It may have caused rails to spread and skip to run off track.

D. Hall, the engineer, and W. John, the foreman, were present.

The body of deceased was found at the 1000 foot level.

The jury returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death by falling down the shaft of the Zella mine, and that the accident was the result of his own conduct in attempting to jump out of skip.

The deceased was a single man. He had been working in the Zella about nine months, and was a native of Russia in the Greek church cemetery, Rev. Father Dabovich officiating.

Brutal Treatment.

A couple of intoxicated fellows came into town last Monday driving a small brown horse to a top buggy. The horse was about exhausted, and was wet with sweat. They had been beating the poor horse until his sides were raw, and his head was bleeding. It would have been a physical impossibility for him to go very much farther. They were using a heavy loaded buggy whip, and using the heavy end at that, to beat the poor horse. They came into town on the run, and as they passed Mr. Oscar Reichling, who was coming in on horseback the fellows struck him a blow with their heavy whip which broke the horse's back and bruised his cheek. They drove to Newman's livery barn and left their horse and buggy. They had thrown their whip away, or dropped it, as it was found in the street just after they had passed by.

Sheriff Gregory arrested them and placed them behind the bars. They refused to give their names to the officers, but later it was ascertained that they were Mike Worden and his friend Herman Smith. Worden is the man that did the work. Smith was but slightly under the influence, and told a very straight story; he claims that Worden is the owner of the horse and that the horse got contrary and would insist on running while Worden wanted him to trot, and that the whipping was done to make him obey his owner's commands. Worden is a bond for $1000, and Smith live at Paloma, and that they were out for a good time and got an overdose of whiskey.

Herman Smith went to Paloma after bonds for his friend Worden. He came back with $1000, and a bond for $1000, but made the mistake in the character of the charge against Worden. He thought from the talk made about the abuse of the horse that Worden could be "run out of town," but found that it was a battery. Worden pleaded guilty, and was fined fifty dollars.

Sunday Fire.

Last Sunday a fire was started in an out-house at Sutter Creek, and attaining considerable headway, soon worked its way to the ranch of Elmer Tanner on the rocky ridge road. Messengers on horseback, summoned men from around the place, and worked to put the fire, and after some hard work the flames were extinguished. Had the fire gone much farther a large amount of hay that was stacked in the field would have been destroyed.

Kennedy—Sinking operations at the east shaft were resumed last Monday, after a suspension of a week or more, caused by the air compressor getting out of repair. According to all reports, the mine is looking well. Notwithstanding the great depth attained, the Kennedy gives promise of eclipsing its wonderful record of the past in the production of the next few years. There are vast reserves of ore in the lower levels, and some of it of high grade.

Good Hope—The patent for this mine has been received at the Sacramento land office. Application was made over three years ago, but owing to the fact that a portion of the claim lay within the townsite and other parts of conflict with vested rights, the title could not be secured. A compromise was effected with the parties in interest. The property is considered by many to be a very promising one, and now that there can be no longer any question about the title, it is thought no trouble will be met with in getting capitalists to take hold and develop it.

Oneida—Reports were current this week that a strike of rich rock had been made in this mine. By inquiries at the office, it was found to be untrue, but no trouble will be met with in getting capitalists to take hold and develop it.

Del Monte—A meeting of the stockholders of this company was held in Jackson July 10. All the old officers were re-elected. The prospects of the mine are very encouraging. Preparations are being made to make a test run of 30 tons of ore taken from the east drift. The company have also located another claim, called the River-side, adjoining the Del Monte on the north—a full claim. They have also secured a new mill site on the Calaveras river.

Prosser—Drifting is in progress at this mine, both east and west. The west drift has entered softer material, which is taken as indicating a near approach to the ledge.

SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

Fire broke out in the western end of the valley, near the Shenandoah mine, last Friday afternoon, and several hours' hard work were required to put it out. A thick fall of smoke over the same tract Saturday morning acted as a fresh alarm, which was responded to as before. The weary fighters returned to dinner feeling all secure when flames broke out afresh in fury. The third was the fiercest of all, but was subdued without much damage. A large amount of lumber and other material came from some smouldering log which was overlooked the first day, but the third blaze was undoubtedly of incendiary origin. The fire-bug and his mores are still very active.

Shenandoah was well represented in Jackson last Thursday. The delegation had its cars pulled by the concussion of much powder, its nostrils filled with the smell of the same, walked and stood till more weary than from a day in harvest, and altogether had a delightful time and a most glorious celebration. Quite a crowd of Valleyites were attracted to Oleta, and had an enjoyable day in that small but lively burg.

The Celebration at Volcano a Success. Breezy News from Plymouth and Shenandoah Valley.

VOLCANO, July 8.—The fourth passed off very quietly in our small town. On account of several serious cases of measles the cannon could not be fired this year. Fire crackers were set off very much in evidence either. The West Point band, which furnished the music for the ball, arrived in the afternoon. They favored us with some choice pieces of music, and for carrying out the evening the streets assumed a rather animated aspect. The dance was in every respect a great success, both financially and socially. The hall was nicely decorated, the music full of life, and the attendance more than could be expected considering other attractions in various places in the county. We had the great pleasure of seeing quite a number of our friends from Sutter and Amador and also from West Point. We did our best to please the strangers, and I fear not to state that they had a good time. Mrs. P. Jonas and Miss Mary Galloway were on the committee, and advised very creditably for carrying out all the arrangements successfully. The Native Daughters will have a handsome surplus as the consequence, in spite of the large expenses for music and other things.

The town looks almost deserted after the holiday. A great many of the boys are employed in the gravel mine in Rancheria, several others have gone to the mine and some to the ditch, so the streets are not very lively in the day time.

Ben Ross, who has had a severe attack of paralysis, is showing remarkable ability, and it seems not impossible, in spite of his age, that he may again be seen around.

L. H. Cook has moved his family to Wiley's, where he is doing business. He has thoroughly renovated the station and reports traveling on the road freely. The Bear River stage stops at his place for change of horses.
